IEN TING,

it then was, and he gave it up and went to see again in a merchant steamer. When fortunes were being made in blockade-running, Allan signed on as chief engineer, and made a first successful trip into the Savannah river. A second run ended in disaster. One dark night, as the blockade-runner, with all lights masked, ran into the Savannah, she was suddenly hailed by a Federal cruiser that was waiting for her in the darkness 'Stop your engines or we shall sink you, was the summons from the cruiser, which had sudddenly shown

'I stopped the engines, said Sir William, as he told the story, 'and began to blow off steam. A boat from the Federal ship had come alongside, and suddenly an officer rushed into my engine-room and put a revolver to my head. He was in a rage, and told me I had opened the valves and was trying to sink the steamer. I must close them at once. I asked him who he was, and he answered. I'm the engineer of 338 the steamer that has taken you. I can't believe you are an engineer.' I said quietly, for you would have a spanner or an oil-can in your fist, instead of fooling about with a pistol, and you would know that I am only blowing off a bit of steam.' At this cool reply the officer dropped his pistol and the two were soon good triends.

THE MAKING OF A FORTUNE. Imprisoned in Richmond, Allan tried in vain to get a letter out to the British consul. At last, one night, a chance. word of the sentry placed over the prisoners told him that the man was from his own district. He got him to take out a letter, and subsequently he found the Confederate soldier to be the husband of a woman from his own native village. After his liberation Allan gave up the sea and became a foreman in an engineering works in the north of England. Things were going very badly, and the directors were talking of closing the works, when he suggested to one of them a plan and policy that might save the situation. He was asked to explain it to the board, and his .. ideas were accepted. Not only that, but he was appointed manager, with full power to carry his plans into execution. This was his chance and he took it. 'I never worked so hard as in that' year, he says. Within the first year (10DOWN Nos. 1 and 31 (GROUND and his policy was amply justified by success. TOP FLOORS). SUBDUED APPLAUSE.

During the earlier years of the reign of Queen Victoria dramatic performances were given at Windsor Castle under the management of Charles Kean. The audience being limited and stiffly aristocratic, the applause was naturally not especially hearty, and the comedian felt the absence of the more demonstrative approval manifested in the regular theatre. One evening the given to repairing. Queen sent an equerry to Mr. Kean to know if the actors would like anything (meaning refreshments), when the actor replied: 'Say to her Majesty that we should be grateful for a little appliese when the spectators are 'pleased.' Back went the equerry and conveyed the message. At the end of the act there was a slight suggestion of hand clapping and exceedingly gentle foot tapping. James Wallack, who knew nothing of the message sent the Queen, hearing the mild demonstration, pricked up his ears and inquired, "Wint is that!" Mr. Kean replied, "That, my dear Wallack, is applause *God bless me i - retorted Wallack. * 1 thought it was someone shelling goas."

NOTEING WORTH AN EFFORT.

Why a German Prince Spends his Time in Bed.

Prince Albert of Saxe-Altenberg, whose death has recently taken place in Garmany, was not, as has been stated in the cable dispatches, the next heir of the reigning Duke of Saxe-Altenberg, but his cousin. The next heir to the reigning Duke is his ! younger brother, Moritz, a prince nearly seventy years of age, who has long enjoyed the reputation of being the most afterly blase man in Europe. Although in perfect physical condition, he has been in the habit of staying in bed for weeks together, not because he was ailing, but purely and simply because, to use his own words, there was "nothing worth getting up for." Under the circumstances it is possible that when his elder brother, the Dake, dies, Moritz will abandon his right of succession to his only son, Ernest, on the ground that it would be ' too much of a bore' to reign.

The late Prince Albert was for many years one of the most intimate friends of Emperor William and a conspicuous member of the Court of Berlin, where the magnificent contralto voice of the Princess -a member of the duest house of Mecklenburg Strelitz-was greatly admired. But Prince Albert in some way quarrelled with the Emperor and accordingly closed his house in Berlin and withdrew to his country seat in Mecklenburg, where he breathed his last.

Among the friends and member of his immediate circle were the Count and Countees Fritz flohenau, who, ever since the amonymous letter scandal which convulsed Berlin society some years ago, have been making their home at Dresden, both the Count and Countess having been among those most cruelly treated by the letters in question. The Count seems to be unfortunate in this respect. It is said that live men have just been sentenced at Dresden to terms ranging from three to ten years in prison with hard labour for systematic attempts to blackmail

The Count is a relative of the Kaiser, being a son of the late Prince Albert of Prussia, by the morganatic wife whom he wedded after divorcing the half-crazy Princess, Marianne of the Netherlands. The Countess Hohenan is a woman of rare beauty, and was one of the first great ladies. of Berlin to venture to ride astride of her horse in the Thier Garten,

WHEN MARRIAGE IS A FAILURE.

That marriage is not always successful is within the knowledge of all. Some of us have that unconfortable fact pretty constantly before us, with practical illustrations; while others, more fortunate, are made aware of it only by the newspapers and an occasional nugrarded temark by some married friend; as in the case of a stockhower, at the firm Turkey repudiated her deld, who, on being asked what he thought of Turkish bonds replied that he preferred them to ! marriage bonds. Doubtless there but been some juring note in that stockbroker's home before he started for his office, that day, or he would sever have made so unbusinesslike a remark. Nevertheless, marriage as a social? institution is not a failure. Of that there is positive proof. It is of the failures that we hear so much; of the innumerable happy marriages!

we hear little or nothing. When once marriage fails from incompatibility of temper, it fails at least ten times from illhealth. What lover of fiction-which is the mirror of truth when told by Dickens-will not recail the picture of David Copperfield and his consumptive child-wife, Dora, whose ferm grew lighter on his arm day by day? There is no more pathotic incident in imaginative literature. Unformately, it has far too often its counterpart in real life. Here is a narrative of fact which might easily enough have resembled it: but the tragedy was happily averted, and it is a case of all's well that ends well. We will let Mrs Emma Bason, of Bayston Hill, near Shrewsbury, speak for herself. Shortly after my meniage,' says this lady, in a sworn declaretion made on 11th January, 1902, . I began to directioned fade. A sort of languer and direct feeling was the first had sign, when my food began lo disturce with me. After the lightest meal, I felt as if I had caten three times too much, and the weight at my chest, and pain between the shoulders, were almost unbearable. Next, my appoints left us altogether, and unless it was something light and tempting, I ste next. to nothing. I soon began to lose tiesh, and n horrid, sinking, fainting feeling was constantly with me. My nights were restless, and often by twisting and furning the right the ough. I dwadled away to a sandow, and remember asking the doctor what it was that made medeel so weak. He gave the no direct answer, but said it was not to be wondered at, and later asked me whether any of my family were consumplive. Ominous question that As if I had not already outugh to hear, and pain now settled in my forehead and rau right across the eyebrows, making me feel sick and dizzy. Wind in the region of the heart, too, sorely tried me, causing it to pulpitute, and at times quite interfering with my respiration.

One day, my own sister brought me two bottles of Mother Seigel's Curative Syrup.

Nov. said she, you must leave off dectoring and take this." I asked her if she was going to kill me outright, but she insisted upon my frying it, and from that day I began to recover. It was along and weary convalescence, during which time I took several bottles of your Syrap, but from the first I began to cal a little, and what I took gave mostrough and encouragement. One by one the many bad symptoms left me. I grew stronger and increased in weight, antil my health was completely restored.

To dry, no one would take me to be the same woman. I give all the praise to Mother Seigel's Cars ive Syrap, which was the me an of restor mg me to health and strength, when all hope of my recovery was abandoned. It would not be easy to find a more interest ing circ of ill-health threatening the happines. of a muririage, with the impending colomity s. fortunatey averted.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

A week or two ago, we AS TO RICHSHA upon a decision of Mr announced, tour Australia next year. Kemp, Police Magis-COOLIES. trate, on the hiring of rickshi coolies. The case, we understand, has been thoroughly investigated by the Olicer Administering the Govern ment, and the Magistrate's decision is upheld because of a fact, which was not brought out in the newspaper reports of the case. It seems that it has been the practice of some of the officers living at Gun Club Hill to pay the coolies ten cents though the ricksha was taken from the Ferry Wharf stance. This, of course, is not a legal fare, the proper amount being fifteen cents, and what Tokio has been sentenced to nine years the Magistrate wished to emphasise was that the coolie was justified in refusing postal orders. hire in this case because it was a fair assumption that he would not be paid his legal fare. As we have said, the Magistrate's decision is upheld. The Magistrate, it seems, did not wish it to be inferred-nor did he say so, it is now stated, that the party wishing to hire a ricksha must do so 'in person.' As this was the remark upon which our recent article was based, we have much pleasure in correctly stating Mr Kemp's attitude in the matter. At the same time, we would point out that it should not be necessary to send to the Wharf for a ricksha. During Mr F. H. May's Company (the latter, it is understood, on superintendency of the Police, a rickshastance was established in Carnaryon Road, and we believe it is stipulated in the ricksha contractor's licence that he The Malacca Collision. must keep a certain number of rickshas there. The story goes on to being the manner in which the black men have come to treat white women. This irritated some of the South African soldiers, and two negroes got roughly handled. From our own information, we may state A Sensitive Bank Manager. that if the black troops have been some what loose in their treatment of white women, it has largely been the result of the behaviour of these somen; their manner has frequently been such as no man who has been East of Suez likes to see.

Then in April Hongkong unloaded Of the highest standard of excellence large blocks of Indo-China shares on Shangand purity, our Ginger Beer forms a hai at high prices, and, in order to settle this 'bear' operation, a Shanghai Syndiand health-giving cate bought up all the loose shares with the intention of foreing them back upon Hongkong at whatever price it chose to dietate. But Hopgkong financiers were equal to the occasion, and got their private agents i Shanghai to work, with the result that a leakage began which proved Shanghai's undeing. Now Hongkong has 'seen Shanghai badly. In June there were a number of failures and in July there was rush to soll. It is estimated that Shanghai has lost to Hongkong over a million taels in hard cash, the brokers themselves having dropped some three lakhs. Share gambling is apparently far from being all beer and skittles, and there is much sorrow over the fact amongst the wiscaeres of the Mode Settlement.

Mr T. R. He considered that after good training and grounding of 10 or 12 years in India, a man should strike out on a new line; he should seek new places and countries where there was more room for expansion and greater scope for initiative, and bring his Indian experience to bear there. He regardel himself as having delayed doing this too long, but even now, late in life, he was going to experiment in China, and he was sure his Indian experience would assist him there very much indeed.

Maritime Reforms.

In July, an International Maritime. Congress sat at Coponlingen, and among subjects discussed was that of the words of commands to helmsmen. Commodore Gjoedesen and other prominent delegates proposed to introduce throughout the world the English words 'right' and 'left,' and 'hard right' and 'hard left,' instead of 'starboard' and 'port.' Admiral Schmidt, the German Emporor's representative, was among the prominent opponents of this idea. Subsequently, the Congress unanimously adopted a resolution for the establish ment of an International Maritime Union, with a permanent bureau for navigation.

Counsell is to becongratulated on this recognition of his deeds, which is, we believe, through the medium of H. E. I will be remembered that Constable Counsell, who, by the way, is a locally signedon man, accested a thief by jumping into the Harbour and swimming after him, and quickly followed this up, during the typhoon of 18th July last, by saving the lives of five people from a storm-heaten junk,

They were evidently inclined to doubt, but when the deft lingers of the pupils began to move over the surface of the pages followed by reading in the true orthodox Chinese style, they looked on in amazement. The smallest of the pupils, ranging from four to seven years of age, went through some pretty Kindergarten exercises. It was in the year 1897 that Miss M Postler began this work in Hongkong. The success was so great that the building she rented soon became too small for the requirements. 'Macao afforded a temporary home, but the growing of the work made the need of a house of our own imperative.' The Hongkong Government granted Earl of Selborne-First Lord of the a site in the Kowloon Territory at Ma Tau Kok, and there, under the care of Messrs Palmer and Turner, a fine two storied building has been erected, providing accommodation for sixty inmates. The total Lord Balfour of Burleigh-Secretary for cost is about $20,000. Of the many forms of philanthropic work in this Colony, there is nothing that appeals with greater force Mr Gerald William Balfour President, than the cry of those little blind outcasts; for each and all alike a terrible fate is in store unless hands and hearts moved with the infinite sympathy of Christ are stretched out to save. We congratulate Miss Postler and Miss Reinecke on the successful completion of their home for the blind, and this (community will see to it that all necessary funds are duly forthcoming. -Communicated.

Prayer and praise were joined with exhortation and admonition, the whole forming a singularly appropriate and felicitious, as it was devoutly Christian, celebration. The speeches dealt with several aspects of the one question appermost in the minds of all viz.: How the blessing of the Most High God may come to races and nations through Christian Sorereigns. The first speaker declared the purpose of the meeting as distinct from and as related to other Coronation celebrations in the Colony, and the second dwelt on the loyalty of Chinese Christian residents under the British Flag. CORRESPONDENCE.

COLLAPSABLE HOUSES. To the Editor of the 'CHINA MAIL.'

Hongkong, August 15. Sug-Though in general agreement with your article on the question of collapsable houses,' I would like to draw attention to some points which you appear to have over-

There is little doubt that many of the caused, by bad work; but in the case of occupied buildings it must be remembered that no matter what work you put in-in reason-unless the house is properly shut up in a typhoon it stands a very poor chance. However aroless and indifferent the Hongkong landlord may be those whose business often calls them to inspect Chinese houses know that the Hengkong tenant is at least equally so. My second point is that many of these failures are of houses in course of arection. However well they may be built-in reason -in such weather as we have recently had, there are bound to be failures. It would be unreasonable to build only in the nontyphoon season. It would be unreasonable to build walls of such strength that, without roofs and floors and with motter only partially set, they should stand a typhoon. I do not wish to be thought to imply that we should fold our hands and say 'It can't be helped.' By all means, let us do all we can to secure reasonably substantial houses, and will remain so until it is shown conclusively to be otherwise, that the majority | Eastern system. dren recited, sang and read from their of the collapses in Hongkong are due to day to the China Association, when giving the Association the substance of the proposed new British Treaty with China, invited comment on the Treaty, and I venture, therefore, to make a few comments on it from the point of view of the ordinary British resident in China.

THE NEW TREATY WITH CHINA.

A Shanghai Criticism.

Mr.J. C. Hanson writes as follows in the N. C. Daily News of the 6th inst .:-

pensation for the promised removal of that | file, each saluting as she passess. venerable Chinese bogey, likin, I gather that this surfax is to be imposed, not merey on piece goods and other similar goods beer and tobacco, which may be regarded in the suspect's pocket. as luxuries, but on the actual necessaries of life such as flour, tinned-meats and provisions, clothing, medicine, books, etc., most if not all of which articles it must be renembered used to come in duty free. An entirely new burden in the shape of Day. excise duty is also to be imposed by the new Treaty.

Section 9 of Article 8 of the Treaty. provides for the imposition and collection by the Customs officials of an excise duty equivalent to double the import duty, as laid down in the Protocol of 1901 (say 10 per cent), on all machine made yarn or cloth manufactured in China. The same section also provides that ' the same principleand procedure is to be applied to all other products of foreign type turned out by machinery, whether by foreigners or Chinese.' Some explanation seems to be required as to what articles are intended to be included under this clause. Although the manufacturing industry may be said to be as yet in its infancy in Shanghai, there are already many products of a foreign type turned out by manufactured by, say, Farnham and Co. | due to the holidays is felt. Acoustius and other aerated waters may all, in a sense, be said to be products of a foreign type turned out by much mery. Is an excise duty of 10 per cent to be imposed on all these products? It is presumed that the imposition of an excise duty will necessarily carry with it the rights of the Chinese Customs officials foreign products, and also the right to | feronce at the Colonial Office, to discuss rispect the manufecturers' lunks from ime to time, as otherwise it is difficult to see how this duty is to be collected. There is one Article in the Treaty which seems to call for the attention of the China Association. The Article I refer to is general public of the Education Bill and the Article 12, which provides that when China | Corn Tax. shall have reformed her laws, otc., Groat Britain will take into consideration the question of abolition of extraterritoriality. A reform of the laws of China is no doubt. wanted badly enough, but what is wanted much more is a change in nature of those who have to administer them, but how this is to be effected I do not know. I suppose we shall be told that we need not be alarmed by this Clause, as it will be quite ineffective and does not mean anything. I can hardly imagine that the British Commissioners can have conceived it possible that British subjects in China would, under any circumstances, consent to be placed under the jurisdiction of Chinese mandains, however perfect code of laws the Chinese Empire may have in the future; if so, what is thouse of allowing such a Clause to be inserted in the Treaty? It will only create false hopes and aspirations in the minds of Chineso officials, and will be sure to give rise to trouble in the future. It is the unexpected which usually happens, and it is quite conceivable, therefore. that the Chinese authorities may for once honestly carry out their treaty obligations. and if so, some of the wealthy manufacturers of Manchester or Bradford will presumably benefit by the new Treaty; so far, however, as the ordinary British resident in China is concerned, it seems to me that with the very heavy additional duties he will have to bear, and the possibility at some future time of being placed under the jurisdiction of Chinese mandarins, his position will be worse under the proposed hew Treaty than it was before.

The Chinese authorities, as usual, seem to have got the bost of the deal all round.
